The Mayor's Office for Policing and Crime has been set up in response to the Police Reform and Social Responsibility Act (2011) which reforms the accountability of police services and replaces police authorities across England and Wales with elected individuals. The MOPAC is headed by the Mayor or, by his nomination, the appointed statutory Deputy Mayor for Policing and Crime. This means that the Mayor is directly accountable for policing performance in London. The MOPAC makes this process and accountability clearer and gives Londoners a further voice in how their city is policed. Through the MOPAC the Mayor and Deputy Mayor will be directly accountable for police performance in the capital, setting the Metropolitan Police's strategic direction and allocating resources. Operational policing remains the responsibility of the Metropolitan Police Commissioner, Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe.
